

BULGARIA READY TO START FIGHTING IS THE REPORT TODAY

RUMORS ARE THAT ADDITIONAL FORCES HAVE BEEN CALLED OUT AND PREPARATIONS MADE FOR WAR.

PEACE TREATY LAGGING

Both Turkey and Allies at Swords' Points Over Terms of the Peace Treaty Now Being Discussed in London.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Dec. 27.—Bulgaria is preparing to resume the war, according to a special dispatch from Runtchuk, Bulgaria.

The correspondent says the Bulgarian war minister has called up the recruits due to be enrolled only in 1914 and has summoned all able-bodied men up to the age of 16 to the colors.

Large supplies of munitions of war and provisions have reached Runtchuk on a Russian steamer which came up the Danube.

Two other steamers brought a large number of cavalry horses and hospital supplies and there were eighty physicians and a corps of nurses on board.

Stop Negotiations.

London, Eng., Dec. 27.—The peace envoys, both of the Balkan states and of Turkey, have adopted the attitude of intransigence, which was expected, toward the others' demands are preposterous.

Third parties who are in touch with both groups of negotiators, share this opinion and intimate that a period of whitening is necessary to transform the proposal and counter proposals into such shape as will enable the peace conference, assisted by the friendly pressure of the powers, to strike a bargain.

As a matter of fact the proposal of the Balkan allies by which they would come into possession of the coast of the sea of Marmora, is regarded by the Turkish demand that the Ottoman empire be allowed to maintain a suzerainty over the coast of the Aegean sea, including the city of Salonika.

The Powers, it is pointed out, would probably veto the project of the allies which would, if carried into effect, give Bulgaria practically control of the Dardanelles.

Exodus of Turks.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The exodus of the Turks from Europe virtually has begun, according to a letter received by the American Red Cross. The letter says that the Red Cross already has aided more than 100,000 Turkish refugees to leave Europe and to take up agriculture in Asia Minor. The families are agriculturalists and they represent for the most part the primitive portion of the Turkish population.

"The situation is very interesting," said the Red Cross correspondent speaking of the farmers' desertions of the homes in Europe, for loaded into their bullock carts are their families and the crude implements of their trade.

"To all appearances the implements are of the same design as those used during the time of the Apostles." The farms across the Bosphorus are provided free by the Ottoman government.

TO CONFER HONORS ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

Speculation Prevails in Regard to Who Will be Named For Special Honors.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Dec. 27.—The honors to be conferred by King George on New Year's day have given rise to some interesting rumors. The vacancy roll of the Order of Merit naturally creates the greatest speculation. The name of Mrs. Humphrey Ward, the writer has been mentioned in this connection, but it is likely that while she will receive some recognition, this greater honor will go to some member of the British aristocracy. Many people would like to see Sir Aston Webb the architect become the successor of the late Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema as a member of this order. It is said that John S. Sargent the American artist would receive it had to become a British subject. Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the actor, it is said, will on this occasion be dubbed a knight. Prince Arthur of Connaught, the son of the Duke of Connaught, Governor general of Canada is due to receive a dukedom probably that of Kent, but this may be postponed until the king's birthday. New peerage will be few and all of them outside the parliament, as the government is not willing to run any further risk of losing by elections.

Youngsters Aged Nine Years Cause Excitement When They March Up Street Waving Loaded Revolvers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Dec. 27.—James Sacina, nine years old, and a companion of the same age, known as "Little Jimmie," caused excitement among the crowds of Halsted street shoppers today when they marched up and down the sidewalk flourishing loaded revolvers and cigars. Finally a policeman put an end to the boys' fun by placing them under arrest. While being taken to the police station "Little Jimmie" escaped. James Sacina despite his youth, has been arrested several times and has served a short term in the "parental school." Several months ago he was arrested for stealing $10 from his father. When questioned the boy said he found the revolver in a trunk at home and bought the dagger. "We are just out to scare people and have a little fun," said the boy.

JAMAICA BANANA CROP MILLION BUNCHES SHORT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Dec. 27.—The humble but nutritious banana in the opinion of American consul Julius Geröher at Port Antonio Jamaica must be reckoned with as a real factor toward reducing the high cost of living, but in the same breath he reported to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce today that the banana crop from Jamaica alone this year would be one million bunches short. The United States consumes five times as much of the fruit as any other single country. Trought and hurricane have worked havoc with the Jamaica crop.

Elaborate Preparations for Greeting Governor Wilson at Washington Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Dec. 27.—Elaborate preparations have been made here and in adjacent Virginia for the reception of president-elect Wilson when he arrives late today on his way to his birthplace in Staunton, Va., to celebrate his birthday anniversary. Bonfires will light the train's flying journey from the Virginia end of the bridge spanning the Potomac river to Staunton.

Governor Wilson will be accorded an ovation here. Democratic members of congress now in the capital are to be at the railroad station when the train arrives.

Is Fully Recovered.

Princeton, Dec. 27.—President-elect Wilson shook his attack of the grippe and started away today to Staunton, Va., his birthplace where tomorrow he will celebrate his 56th birthday. Mrs. Wilson accompanied the governor. A drizzling rain was falling.

Dr. James Carnochan called early today to see if the governor was physically fit to make the trip and pronounced him "about himself again." He did not think it particularly risky for Mr. Wilson to go, but advised him to take good care of himself. Gov. Wilson expects to sleep tonight in his own bed in the rectory at Staunton where he was born.

He will participate in the celebration given by the town people tomorrow and will attend a banquet in his honor tomorrow night. He will leave Staunton at 11:05 Sunday morning and will reach Princeton Sunday night.

Welcome at Staunton.

Staunton, Va., Dec. 27.—A great array with the words "Welcome Home" outlined in incandescent bulbs formed the gateway through which the people of Staunton will welcome home tonight their distinguished native son, President-elect Wilson. Preparations under way for nearly two weeks to make the home coming a great Virginia occasion were completed early today. The parade to be reviewed by the president-elect tomorrow will be one of the features of the festival.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Racine, Dec. 27.—At an early hour this morning the mangled body of Charles H. Thompson, one of the most prominent men in Racine county, residing at Union Grove, was found beside the tracks of the C. M. & St. P. road at Silvana. The body was so mangled that recognition was impossible at first. It appears that Mr. Thompson, who is deputy sheriff at Union Grove, left his home yesterday morning to serve some papers south of Cortis. He walked to Silvana to take the 6:30 train home last night, and it is supposed a freight train struck him while he was crossing the tracks.

GOVERNMENT URGES FARMERS TO RAISE MORE SUGAR BEETS

Department of Agriculture Issues Appeal Declaring That United States Should Produce Its Own Sugar.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Dec. 27.—With the declaration that the United States should raise all of its own sugar, the department of agriculture today issued an appeal to the American farmer to go in for cultivation of the sugar beet.

There are two million short tons of these now imported annually says the department which should be raised at home.

"The average American consumes $3 pounds of sugar each year," says the report, "and only 10 pounds of that is produced in this country. The farmer of this country should keep that money at home."

M. R. Osburn, manager of the Rock County Sugar Company, approved of the advice of the department of agriculture and pointed out that the increase in the output of sugar grown in the United States meant a decrease in the cost of living, a substantial most important to every household. Not only that but the statistics of European countries where sugar beets are grown, show that the cultivation increases the fertility of the soil for other crops thus being of direct benefit to the farmer in the long run.

USE TOY BALLOONS AS WIRELESS SYSTEM

Mexican Rebels Employ Effective Means of Learning Federal's Advance.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 27.—Toy balloons are being employed by the rebels in northern Mexico as a system of "wireless" to give information regarding the movements of federal soldiers. Every time a troop train departs from Chihuahua city a toy balloon floats up from the center of the state capital. A relay of the simple signals tells the rebels that government troops are coming. Destruction of railways has made the telegraph uncertain and as the federalists do not employ wireless telegraphy the rebel advances are in many instances ahead of the federalists' information.

The board is considering the creation of a fund to be used for the purpose which would be raised by a small additional assessment. The fund would be used to defray the expense of the children and instead of sending them to orphan institutions it would be possible to appoint a guardian and either have them live with the guardian or have the guardian live with them at their homes.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Dispatches from Cherbourg state that many steamers and sailing vessels have taken refuge there from the gale. Telegrams from Brest say that the harbor is crowded. Last night the maritime prefect of that port was in wireless communication with the Peninsular and Oriental liner Narving off Ushant. The Narving captain at first signalled that she was in distress, but later telegraphed that she no longer needed help.

President of Collegiate Athletic Association Says College Stars Should Not Copy from Professionals.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Boston, Dec. 27.—Certain forms of coaching and antics of the baseball field were deplored by Dean Le Barre, R. Briggs of Harvard in his annual address today as president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. He spoke of the particular necessity of differentiating between amateur and professional baseball and continued: "There is much in professional baseball as played by the kings of the game that we don't want to see our students imitate. We should not for instance want to see them imitate Mr. Jennings on the coaching line although much that he does is humorous and accepted by the American public."

RESIDENCE DAMAGED BY FIRE AND SMOKE

Fire Department Called to Home of William Sager on North Bluff Street This Morning.

The fire started underneath the stairway and produced a dense, heavy black smoke, much like that from burning tar. The firemen succeeded in extinguishing it with chemicals in a very few minutes. The room in which the fire broke out and one adjoining were so badly damaged by smoke, fire and water that they will have to be refinished, and smoke penetrated to all parts of the house. More extensive damage was prevented by the prompt opening of the windows and letting the smoke out.

PRaises MERITS OF STATE COMMISSION

Prof. John R. Commons Gives Address on Wisconsin Industrial Board at Boston Meeting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Boston, Mass., Dec. 27.—Prof. John R. Commons, member of the Wisconsin Industrial commission, and former head of the department of economics at the University of Wisconsin, was the principal speaker today at the joint convention of the American Economic association and the American Association for Labor Legislation. He dwelt particularly upon phases of the industrial commission's duties which are peculiar to the Wisconsin administrative body.

"The Wisconsin commission differs from the departments of labor in other states in that it consists of three members with power to issue and enforce general or special orders," he said. "It also brings together in one commission all of the legislation of the state dealing with the relation of employers and employees, including some eleven different departments, of which workmen's compensation and safety and sanitation are the principal ones."

Has Greater Power.

"The object is two-fold. The first is to bring about a co-operation between the compensation law and the safety and sanitation law, in order to have both of them work directly towards the prevention of accidents; the second is to relieve the legislature of the minute details of legislation and entrust the commission to draw up the details under the general rule laid down by the legislature that the employer must protect the life, safety, health and welfare of his employees. In this way a large amount of the time of the legislature and the pressure of lobbyists is released."

"The commission has gone about its work by bringing together as advisory committees the representatives of all interests affected by the law. On its several committees employed to draft the rules and submit them to the commission are representatives of the employers' associations, the state federation of labor, the boards of health, employers' mutual liability companies, representatives of old line insurance companies, of the Consumers' league, the state federation of women's clubs, as well as experts selected by the commission."

Reduction in Accidents.

Prof. Commons said, that in one large manufacturing town, 3,000 orders covering points of danger were issued, and a recent report to the commission showed that every one has been covered. "In one foundry, the burns to molders have been reduced 85 per cent. One wood-working establishment reports that it has reduced accidents to 40 per cent. One large bed-manufacturing plant has made a reduction of 50 per cent in accidents."

"The news of these great reductions in accidents carried over the state by deputies and by the bulletins issued by the commission serve to stir up the interest and enthusiasm of manufacturers in reducing accidents," said Prof. Commons. "The other fields of work of the commission, he said, such as child labor, women's hours, street trades, and free employment offices, have also been conducted on this method of advisory committees. In this way the commission not only is enabled to keep itself free from political influence but it has had the assistance of the people most nearly concerned and most interested in the particular field of work to aid it in improving the administration and enforcing the laws."

FINISH VERIFYING PETITIONS TOMORROW

City Clerk Nears End of Task—Will Make Report to City Council of Findings.

By late today or early tomorrow City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund will have completed the work of verifying the signatures to the recall petition and will then prepare his findings to be submitted to the council. Ten days are given the city clerk in which to certify the recall petitions to the council according to the provisions of the commission government act. The names on the lists have been compared with the poll books and the city directory, faulty or dubious signatures checked and investigations made as to their correctness and legality. City Attorney W. H. Dougherty will probably file an opinion as to the legality of the recall petitions.

EXPECTS A VERDICT SOMETIME TODAY IN DYNAMITERS' CASES

Noted Prosecution by Government in Drawing Near an End in Indianapolis.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 27.—After three months of trial it is expected that the jury in the famous dynamiters' case will bring in some sort of a verdict this afternoon late.

Verdict Expected. Government officials were confident that before night the jurors would be able to return their findings in the cases of the 40 labor union officials, who are accused of assisting in and appropriating $1,000 a month for the services of 100 dynamite and nitroglycerin explosions carried on by McNamara brothers against the employers of non-union labor in Los Angeles and other cities.

From the facts that federal Judge Albert B. Anderson instructed the jury to "carefully consider all the evidence in the case" when it required three months to present the case for Frank M. Ryan, president of the iron workers international union and the other defendants were of the opinion that the jurors may not be able to find verdicts within 24 hours after their retirement.

In anticipation of developments at 9:30 a. m. when court was to open and when all the defendants were ordered to appear, 100 special deputies and bailiffs were stationed about the corridors of the federal building to keep back the crowds.

PROPOSE EXTENSION OF RECALL FEATURE

Would Apply Principle to Appointive Officers and Members of State Commissions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Dec. 27.—A new application of the recall will be attempted at this session of the legislature. Heretofore such a law has been proposed which will apply the recall feature to all important appointive officials, especially the members of the railroad, industrial and tax commissions.

As now drafted the bill will permit a recall of these appointive officials, either by the legislature or by the people direct. It is proposed that upon a petition of 25 per cent of the number of voters who voted at the last gubernatorial election the question of the recall of the official designated must be submitted to a vote of all of the people of the state at a special election. An official may also be recalled by the legislature upon a two-thirds vote of both houses voting separately.

In order that the recall may not be abused as applying to the appointive officials it is proposed in the bill which will come before the legislature that the recall can only be applied to the same official only once in every two years. The scheme was first suggested in a book on the "Wisconsin Idea" written by Dr. Charles McCarthy of the legislative reference library. He argues that the reason for appointing these members of the big government commissions is their expert knowledge of the subjects that will come before them for consideration. Opposition to state government commissions has sprung up, because it is claimed that the people have no control over them; inasmuch as they are not elective offices. The proposed recall is aimed to do away with this objection.

The constitutional amendments providing for the initiative, referendum, and recall will come before the legislature for final passage this winter. These amendments were passed by the session two years ago, but the constitution requires that they be passed by two successive legislatures before they can be submitted to a vote of the people. Opposition is promised in some sections to these changes.

CROP IS RECEIVED IN FINE CONDITION

Deliveries of 1912 Tobacco Show Leaf to Be Very Sound, But Weight is Lacking.

The taking over of the unsold fraction of last season's tobacco crop is quietly going on in most of the growing sections and something like earlier prices have been paid for the better selections, though the bulk of the sales are nearer stemming figures.

Sample sales are:

Otto Ottosen, 14a at 12 1/2c & 4c.
H. W. Anderson, 8a at 10 1/2c & 4c.
Ola Sterstad, 6a at 10 1/2c & 4c.

The receiving of the new crop has proceeded far enough to gain a pretty fair indication of the condition in which the tobacco is coming to the packing houses this season. A sounder crop has not been delivered to the packers in some years past, but it is not weighing out as heavy as most growers expected, partly because the tobacco was taken down in a rather light case and contains no excess moisture that so often is the bane of some crops. Then the leaf is thin in texture and while the bundles are bulky, the scales do not show as large a yield per acre as growers expected. A yield of 1500 pounds is probably exceptional and the most of the early portion of the crop will hardly exceed 1200 pounds to the acre. The tobacco runs uncommonly bright in colors and is coming to the warehouses in such exceptionally fine condition that very little trouble need be expected in delivery if the crops are properly stripped and filers and trash eliminated. So far the packers have very little fault to find with their purchases as they are received. All indications point to the 1912 tobacco as the best binder crop the state has produced in some years.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR IS TO BE COMPLETE

Annual Gazette Publication Will Appear on Tuesday Next Replete in Every Particular.

For the past two months work has been in progress on the review and chronological number of the Gazette which is to be issued next Tuesday, Dec. 31st. This edition has come to be a reference number and is preserved and referred to for an indefinite period by those who secure a copy, as it contains in condensed form a complete summary of all of the occurrences of the year past. It covers the obituaries, reviews the progress of the city's affairs, the building and commercial and social occurrences, which have transpired in the twelve months past.

There is always a very liberal advance call for extra copies of this edition and already orders have commenced to come into the Gazette office for it. In the past two years the supply has been entirely exhausted and because they had not given their orders early enough to be cared for. We advise immediate reservation of whatever number of copies you would desire. The public is assured of a paper equal in all ways to those of the past.

No single edition reflects the city's progress nor is so representative of the community as this review edition and for that reason it is extremely valuable as an advertising medium. Those who have announcements to make should have their copy in within the next forty-eight hours so that they can be accommodated. Orders for extra copies should be in also by Saturday evening at nine o'clock. The price of the edition per copy is five cents.

Jim Barry, a Chicago fighter, says Sam Langford, Jack Johnson's arch enemy, started the job of whipping Jim Jeffries at Reno. "Langford knocked Jeff out in a private four-round battle before the Reno fight," says Barry. "He cut loose just a middling hard punch which caught Jeff squarely on the jaw. He went down and out. After being whipped by Langford, Jeff knew he would have no chance with Johnson, and that's why he was a nervous wreck before he entered the Reno ring."

His name is Gilmour Dobie and in five years he hasn't lost a single contest. Before every game Dobie is a pessimist and for fear his men will be overconfident, proceeds to tell them they are the biggest bunch of boobies who ever lumbered onto a gridiron. Dobie's contract with the University of Washington will expire in 1913.

ADMITS HE ROBBEDPAUL LEUDTKE BAR

Mark Matthews, charged with burglarizing Saloon Last Night, Desires to Plead Guilty.

Mark Matthews, a carpenter, arraigned before Judge Field this morning, charged with breaking into the bar-room of Paul Leudtke at 72 South River Street last night expressed his desire to waive the usual examination and enter a plea of guilty. As there was some doubt as to whether Matthews was entirely sober and fully comprehended the situation, the formal receipt of his plea and the passing of sentence was deferred until tomorrow morning.

The robbery, which was evidently committed some time between twelve and one o'clock, was first discovered by Patrolman Tom Morrissey. As he passed the saloon he noticed that the light which the ordinances requires shall be left burning had been turned out. On investigating he found that the rear door of the bar-room which leads from the hall-way opening on Court Street was open. He then notified Mr. Leudtke, the proprietor who came down and assisted him in examining the premises. Thirteen dollars had been taken from the cash register and two pint bottles of whiskey were missing. The burglar had gained an entrance by boring holes in the door so that he could reach his hand in and throw back the bolt.

The fact that Matthews was in the saloon at the time it was closed for the night was one of the circumstances that led to his arrest. Another was that Patrolman Morrissey met him in company with Joseph Kelly after the saloon closed. Matthews told the officer that he had better take Kelly in charge as he was intoxicated and he might freeze to death if left alone. Patrolman Morrissey took Kelly to the station for the night and Matthews evidently returned to the saloon to do his night's work.

Patrolman Harry Smith placed Matthews under arrest at about 4:30 o'clock this morning. Matthews had a large auger brace but no bits in his possession, the two bottles of whiskey, and $10.55 of the $13 he acknowledged stealing. He had no explanations to make except to tell the police that he must be crazy. When he appeared in court this morning he seemed very morose and penitent. Matthews is said to be a hard drinker but is not known to have been in any trouble of this kind before. Mr. Leudtke claims that an attempt was made to break into his saloon through another rear door last Monday and several cases of empty bottles have been stolen from the place where they were piled outside the building.

LARGE INCREASE INTHE XMAS BUSINESS

Postmaster Valentine Reports Business Last Three Days Showed Increase of About $400.

According to Postmaster C. J. Valentine, the Christmas business at the postoffice this year shows a decided increase over that of last year. Just what the exact figures are, has not yet been determined, as the reports of the postmaster have not been completed, but a fair idea of the increase is shown by the fact that the business the last three days before Christmas this year was about four hundred dollars over the amount received in 1911. The greater portion of this, of course, was in the sale of one cent stamps for use on postal cards, although many stamps were sold for use in mailing packages and letters. This year, too, saw the greatest rush that has ever been experienced here, and the last few days before the holiday, the amount of mail that came into the office was so great as to cause considerable difficulty in handling it, and sending it to its destination.

Concise Epistles.

Talleyrand could write a short letter. When a woman wrote to inform him of the death of her husband, he simply replied: "Chere Marquise, helas." And among official dispatches there is that of Sir George Walton, who, after an engagement with the Spanish fleet, wrote: "Sir: I have taken or destroyed all the Spanish ships as per margin. Yours, etc." And a later instance was the complaint of Cecil Rhodes that Dr. Jim had upset the apple cart.

"FRANK WINNINGER."

"How is it, a friend of mine once asked," said Frank Wwinner, "that you can give the show that you do for the low prices of ten, twenty, thirty and fifty cents?" I believe that the people as a rule take a bargain wherever they can get it; whether it is in a dry-goods store, a grocery store, or in a theatrical performance. It is a at dollar and a half prices with one third as many people. Another thing; take for instance anyone man or woman who is working for a moderate salary, he or she can take advantage of the moderate prices and see my show five times and sit in good seats too for the price they would have to pay to attend one of the so-called productions that play one night stands at dollar and a half prices. And I dare known fact in the theatrical profession that it is much easier to please a large audience than a small one and if I am playing a theatre the capacity of which is twelve or fourteen hundred and I can fill it at prices ranging from ten to fifty cents, I would rather do it than to play to the same money say they would be just as well pleased with my show as they would with the higher priced attraction." Mr. Wwinner and his own company will open a week's engagement at the Myers Theatre, Monday night, December 30, matinee New Year's, Saturday and Sunday.

PREPARING FOR THE NEW PARCELS POST

Postmaster C. E. Valentine Making Arrangements for Establishment of System in This City.

Preparations for the establishment of the parcels post system in this city are being made by Postmaster C. E. Valentine at the local postoffice. Parcels post maps, guide books, stamps, insurance tags and other equipment have been received at the postoffice, and on January 1, 1913, the new system will be instituted in Janesville. In discussing the establishment of the system today, Mr. Valentine particularly emphasized some of the features of this newly-created branch of the postoffice department. "With the establishment of the parcels post," said he, "all fourth class mail matter will have to be sent with the special parcels post stamp upon it, and each package must bear the return card with the name and address of the sender. Ordinary stamps cannot be used to send parcels post matter, or the packages will have to be held for postage. Neither can the parcels post stamps be used in sending letters.

"Under the parcels post fourth class matter cannot be registered, but by the payment of a fee of ten cents, the same as for registry, the packages may be insured for any amount up to fifty dollars. Tags for packages that have been insured, must be tied on each package insured, and if it is desired, a return receipt may be secured, the same as in registering other mail matter.

"The general effect of the parcels post system will be to increase the weight of the mail matter that may be sent through the mails and to decrease the cost of sending it. At present the maximum weight of fourth class mail is four pounds, but under the parcels post eleven pounds may be sent. Articles weighing over four ounces must bear the special parcels post stamps and the cost of sending will be subject to the pound rate and the zone rate. Fourth class matter weighing less than four ounces must bear the special parcels post stamps, but the charges will not be subject to the zone rates, the charge being the same for all distances. Where a rate of sixteen cents a pound on all fourth class mail matter up to four pounds is now charged, under the parcels post the rates are graduated according to distance and weight as well. Thus, a package weighing four pounds, would now cost sixty-four cents to send, whereas a package of the same weight sent by parcels post might be sent anywhere in the city for eight cents, in the first zone, anywhere within fifty miles of the city for fourteen cents, and the greatest charge, in the eighth zone, which embraces all territory over eighteen hundred miles distant, would be forty-eight cents.

For a short time after the system has been established here and until the people are more familiar with its workings, the postmaster has asked that all packages to be sent by parcels post be brought to the postoffice in order that they may be properly mailed. The parcels post stamps have been issued in denominations of 1 cent, 2 cents, 4, 5, 10, 15, 20, 25 and 75 cents. The city carrier forces are to be used in delivering parcels post matter, the same as for the delivery of fourth class matter.

Members of the Lakota club were hosts at a well attended and very delightful dancing party at Assembly hall last evening. The function was the annual Christmas ball of the club and it far surpassed all other affairs at which the young men have been eminently successful.

Two hundred couples were present last evening and enjoyed the program of twenty dances, incomparable music for which was furnished by the George L. Hatch eight piece orchestra. The hall was beautifully and tastefully decorated with poinsettias, southern smilax and Christmas greens. From the center of the ceiling hung a lattice work of red blooms and green foliage and streamers were draped from it to the walls which were also hung with sprays of green.

The orchestra was situated in a grove of Christmas trees and electric lights which were shaded with red shades shedding a soft glow on the merry throng.

Hammarlund, president; P. F. Fleek, vice-president; Oscar Yahn, secretary; and George Caldwell, treasurer. The committee was: George W. Caldwell, J. Brown, P. Ryan, J. Worthington, and J. McCue.

WOMAN'S PAGE

THINKING WOMEN
by Barbara Boyd

Why Are Conservatives?

“DON'T you think conservative people are rather queer?” propounded the girl who is original to the group around the fireplace.

“Queer?”

“Yes. I'm always trying to discover how they think, in order to hold the views they do.”

“Perhaps they don't think. Maybe that's the secret of their state of mind.”

“Maybe it is,” laughed the girl. “I never thought of that. But it seems so incomprehensible to me that a person should always want things to remain as they are. I know a man of this sort who thought trolleys were an invention of the Evil One, and wanted laws passed to prevent their being operated on crowded streets. When automobiles appeared, he fairly exploded with indignation. He snorts now at the very mention of one. And in regard to flying machines, he is absolutely speechless. Language fails him to express what he thinks of these. And there are thousands of people like him. There are lots of women who wouldn't use gas or electricity to cook with, or vacuum cleaners, or anything of the kind. And there are others who have the same attitude toward mental or spiritual progress. Any change in educational methods calls forth loud expostulations. Any advance in spiritual vision is simply progress in the wrong direction.”

“Yes. There are lots of such people,” admitted the group.

“And the funny part of it is,” went on the girl. “They never realize what a back number they are. They are rather proud of their standing fast in the same old place. As if to be a barnacle were admirable.”

“I'd like to know where we'd be if this attitude were the right one,” she went on. “We'd still be going about in stage coaches and using flint and tinder.”

“Can't you hear the dire predictions of this clan when the first steam cars began to operate?” said one of the women.

“Yes. And when they first had matches. I suppose with such dangerous things around, they expected the house to be burned down every night.”

“Of course the conservatives of today say they wouldn't have been so foolish as all that. But they are just as great obstructionists about the progressive things of today.”

“If they'd had their way, we would never have reached the era of steam railroads and matches,” said one of the women.

“No,” laughed the girl. “We'd still be cave-dwellers. But the strangest part of it all to me is that this sort of people never learn. Anything that is progressive, that is new, always has to make such a fight to be heard or accepted. And this, despite the fact that history is one long story of the struggle to bring to the world better things. Wouldn't you think by this time, that we would throw overboard this hold-back, let-well-enough-alone attitude, and accept the good that is coming our way. Just think with what leaps we would go forward, if we gladly welcomed every means of advancement, instead of casting upon it a suspicious eye, and raising our voice in condemnation.”

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

KEEPING ONE'S DISLIKE TO ONE'S SELF.

WE HAD been talking about a rather disagreeable woman who sometimes comes to call on the lady-who-always-knows-somehow.

“Molly, the stenographer-lady, came into the room just in time to hear her name mentioned. ‘How I do dislike that woman,’ she said, as she spread out her hands to the open fire.

“Why do you say that, Molly?” asked the lady, a tone of gentle disapproval evident in her voice.

“Because I do,” said Molly.

“Yes, I know you do feel that way, but why put it into words,” pursued the lady.

“Why shouldn't I?” said Molly.

“Isn't it just as well not to?” insisted the lady.

“Does it do you any special good?”

“No,” admitted Molly rather reluctantly. “I don't suppose it does.”

“And do the nicest people you know, the folks you admire the most, go round telling how they dislike people?”

“Don't know that they do,” conceded Molly. “I guess you're right as usual, Lady. I like it all back. Only I don't have to say I like her do I? Because I don't. I just—Oh dear, I've said it again.”

Whereupon the lady laughed with the rest of us and gave Molly up as an incorrigible child.

But seriously, don't you agree with the lady-who-always-knows-somehow that it's wiser and finer to learn not to express one's dislikes at every opportunity?

A friend of mine used to offer some indigestion tablets which had helped her to all indigestion sufferers with this recommendation, “They can't hurt you and they may do you some good.”

Now it seems to me that one can say just exactly the opposite about the habit of blurring out one's dislike on every possible occasion. “It can't do you any good and it may hurt you.”

And as the Lady says, you will realize that the finest people, the people you admire, don't do it. They probably have their dislikes, being human, but they don't take everyone into their confidence about them any more than they would about their private affairs.

If we could train ourselves not to waste energy in dislikes, that would be ideal. Unfortunately to most of us weak human beings, that is impossible. But we can train ourselves to keep our dislikes private. In the words of a humble but very keen philosopher—

“I s'pose maybe we can't help formin' opinions, but I guess 'phaps if we tried poety hard we could help mentionin' of 'em as frequent as we do.”

1 cup; baking powder, 2 teaspoons; eggs, 2; flavoring.

UTENSILS—Pastry board, measuring cup, teaspoon, cookie pans.

DIRECTIONS—Cream the butter and crisco. (Crisco is a vegetable fat, but lard may be used if preferred). Gradually add the sugar and the well-beaten eggs not separated. Alternate milk and flour and baking powder until you have a nice batter which can be divided easily. Divide this dough into four portions.

(1)—1 teaspoon of lemon or vanilla.

(2)—1-2 cup of grated coconut.

(3)—1-2 square of melted chocolate, or 1 teaspoon cocoa, cinnamon flavoring.

(4)—1 teaspoon mixed spices, 1-2 cup chopped raisins, dates, figs, or nuts; almond flavoring. Less flour may be used and drop from the spoon.

In making these cookies white sugar may be used instead of brown and sprinkled over the top at the last rolling. A raisin, half of cherry or nut may be placed in the center. For children at this season, use fancy cutters, such as stars, animals and hearts. These decorative cookies mean more to a child in his Christmas than costly gifts.

PEANUT COOKIES.

HOLIDAY DISHES.

Each year at holiday season the markets and stalls are increasingly full of fruits, nuts and delicacies and it is easier to provide the table with good things, even with a small purse.

Pepper and Grape Fruit Salad.—Cut slices from the stem end of three green and three red peppers, remove the seeds and white pulp, fill with finely cut celery hearts, green grapes seeded and peeled, and the pulp of grape fruit carefully removed in small sections. Arrange a spoonful of mayonnaise with a half of a walnut meat on each, place on lettuce leaves and serve, alternating the red and green peppers at the table.

Preserved Marrons.—Cook chestnuts until tender, then preserve in sugar and lemon juice boiled to a thick sirup. Cut some rounds of sponge cake and place two chestnuts on each round, add a little of the liquor in which they were preserved, and place a ring of sweetened, flavored whipped cream around the edge of the cake.

Fruit Mince Meat.—Cook together equal quantities of dates and figs, with lemon juice and sugar to make it of the right consistency, adding a few raisins for seasoning. Use for filling for pies. A few nuts added will make a finer pie.

Holiday Sandwiches.—Chop fine a small sour pickle, add six stoned and chopped olives and a tablespoonful of capers; mix with three table-spoonfuls of stiff mayonnaise. Cut thin slices of bread, butter them and spread half of the slices with this mixture and the other half with cream cheese. Cut in fancy shapes, sprinkle with paprika and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Apple pie is a mode is a festive dessert which is universally liked. Serve a wedge of pie with a spoonful of ice cream on top. Serve with rich cheese.

Nellie Maxwell.

Forgetfulness.

“What party are you interested in?” asked the man who thinks of nothing but politics. “That’s what I have been telephoning my wife to find out,” replied Mr. Megkton. “The only thing I can remember about it is that it’s a bridge party.”

The Difference.

A fool is unable to see his own faults. A wise man, seeing his own faults, is able to keep other people from noticing them.

DR. STARKEY'S “ELIXIR OF LIFE.”

“Old age is a condition that can be cured,” declares Dr. Frank R. Starkey of Philadelphia, who says he has discovered an elixir of life, a paste formed of extracts from the glands of fowls and sheep mixed with chemically pure glycerine, which is injected into the blood. Dr. Starkey is a reputable physician connected with the medical laboratory staff of the Medico-Chirurgical hospital of Philadelphia. He has taken the elixir himself, and says that he feels twenty years younger, and looks it. “This extract is not a medicine,” says Dr. Starkey. “Every one has the organs functioning that produce the same solution which I produce. It is when they become inharmonious, when they get out of balance, that metabolism, the process of tissue interchange, is disturbed, and a lack of resistance to the invasion of disease follows.” This is equivalent to saying that if there is proper harmony in the secretions, the elixir is unnecessary. In other words, the elixir is only like drugs in general, an artificial means of supplying what nature can supply better. All recent investigations tend to the conclusion that the integrity of the internal secretions, their harmony, as Dr. Starkey expresses it, is fundamental to health, and the recent experiments of Prof. Pavlov lead to the conclusion that complex diet tends constantly to destroy harmony in the secretions, and that, therefore, the best means of maintaining harmony, and avoiding the lowering of vitality, which invites disease, is the monodiet.

Christmas Temperance Punch.

Heat two quarts water and one cup sugar.

Squeeze juice from four oranges and four lemons.

Put rinds into sirup for a few minutes.

Remove from fire, take out rinds and, when cool, add one pint strawberry sirup, one quart grape juice, one pint of pineapple juice and the lemon and orange juice.

Pour over ice in punch bowl.

Table Decorations.

The Christmas dinner will not only be more attractive, but will taste better if the dining table is appropriately decorated.

A very nice way is to have a vine of holly and green leaves trailing in graceful curves around the festal board.

A miniature Santa Claus with his pack resting on the table, filled to overflowing with nuts, candy, fruit, etc., makes a very pleasing centerpiece.

Ropes of cranberries or autumn leaves add much to Christmas decoration.

Candies.

Christmas Nut Foam.—Place in a saucepan two cups of sugar, one-half cup white corn sirup and a pinch of cream of tartar.

Let boil until it forms a hard ball when a bit is dropped into cold water, add one teaspoon vanilla, then pour over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs.

Beat up until light and foamy.

Have a greased pan covered with chopped nuts; pour over this a foamy mixture stirred evenly with a spoon and press chopped nuts over the top; then mark into squares and set aside to cool.

HOME
PROBLEMS
BY MRS. ELIZABETH
THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17, in the 10th grade, and I am going with a gentleman about 23 years of age. He says he loves me and I know I love him. (1)—Should I remain in school or marry? It seems as if love is growing stronger in my head, though I am trying to overcome such matters, and be studious. He is a minister of the gospel and pastoring one church two Sundays in a month; also he'll graduate this term. He seems to want to marry in a few years.

(2)—Is it any harm to kiss him if we are deeply in love with each other?

(3)—He comes to call on me once a week. Is that too often? My board-mistress doesn't like it. Is she treating me right?

It seems as if I had a hard time in my single life. Don't you think it would be better if I would marry?

(4)—Do you think I would make a good teacher?

A BROKENHEARTED GIRL.

(1)—Wait until you are 18 before you marry. If he loves you he will be willing to wait until then. You are not fit to be a wife now. (2)—In your case, my dear, I'm afraid you don't know when to stop kissing. I don't think this young man is anxious to marry you in a hurry, anyway, and love alone isn't a good excuse for extravagant kissing. So I see a good deal of harm in it for you. (3)—Your boarding-mistress is only thinking of your welfare. Better heed her advice. (4)—If you make up your mind to be, you can.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—When two girls are introduced to each other and one says “Pleased to meet you,” what should the other say. (2)—When a lady acquaintance offers me the use of a book of to take me to luncheon and I wish to accept, what should I say? (3)—I have a bad complexion, blackheads, pimples, etc. Please give me a simple menu for two days which, if followed, would help to make me healthier and have

DINNER STORIES

The teacher asked: “When did Moses live?”

After the silence had become painful she ordered: “Open your old Testaments. What does it say there?”

A boy answered: “Moses, 4,000.”

“Now,” said the teacher, “why didn’t you know when Moses lived?”

“Well,” replied the boy, “I thought it was his telephone number.”

An eminent German scientist who recently visited this country with a number of his colleagues was dining at an American house and telling how much he had enjoyed various phases of his visit. “How did you like our railroad trains?” his host asked him. “Ach, they are wonderful,” the German gentleman replied; “so swift, so safe—chenerally—and such luxury in all the furnishings and appointments. All is excellent except one thing, our wives do not like the upper berths.”

Frank Lockwood, an English counsel of whom many stories are told, was once defending a man at York who was accused of stealing cattle. “beasts,” they call them there. “Now, my man,” said Lockwood, “you say that you saw this and so; how far can you see a beast to know it?” “Just as far off as I am from you,” promptly returned the witness. In another case a thief showed both wit and some logic. He had been convicted of stealing a horse. “Yours is a very serious offense,” said the judge, sternly. “Fifty years ago it was a hanging matter.” “Well,” replied the prisoner, “and fifty years hence it mayn’t be a crime at all.”

According to Sir John Murray, one of the greatest authorities on oceanography, the bottom is a desert of pitch-black darkness, penetrating cold, and eternal silence. Worms, sea puddings, and coral polyps sluggishly crawl or sway in the almost currentless depths, and only two species of fish, both of them, with much head and little body, have been found deeper than a mile and a quarter down.

CHAPTER V.

The Defense of the Stage.

There were times when Hamlin's mental processes seemed slow, almost sluggish, but this was never true in moments of emergency and peril. Then he became swift, impetuous, seemingly borne forward by some inspiring instinct. It was for such experiences as this that he remained in the service—his whole nature responding almost joyously to the bugle-call of action, of imminent danger, his nerves steadying into rock. These were the characteristics which had won him his chevrons in the unrequited service of the frontier, and when scarcely more than a boy, had put a captain's bars on the gray collar of his Confederate uniform.

Now, as he struggled to his knees, gripping the iron foot-rail with one hand, a single glance gave him a distinct impression of their desperate situation. With that knowledge, there likewise flashed over his mind the only possible means of defense. The Indians, numbering at least thirty, had ridden recklessly out from under the protection of the river bank, spreading to right and left, as their ponies' hoofs struck the turf, and were now charging down upon the disabled coach, yelling madly and brandishing their guns. The very reckless abandon of their advance expressed the conception they had of the situation—they had no idea of the flight of the two fugitives, the runaway of the wheelers, and believed the remaining passengers would be helpless victims. They came on, savage and confident, not anticipating a fight, but a massacre—shrieking prisoners, and a glut of revenge.

With one swing of his body, Hamlin was upon the ground, and had jerked open the inside door of the coach, forcing it back against the dirt of the bluff which towered in protection above. His eyes were quick to perceive the peculiar advantage of position; that their assailants would be compelled to advance from only one direction. The three within were barely struggling to their feet, dazed, bewildered, failing as yet to comprehend fully those distant yells, when he sprang into their midst, uttering his swift orders, and unceremoniously jerking the men into position for defense.

"Here, quick now! Don't waste time! It's a matter of seconds, I tell you! They're coming—a horde of them. Here, Moylan, take this rifle barrel and knock a hole through the back there big enough to sight out of. Hit it hard, damn you, it's a case of life or death! What have you got, Gonzales? A revolver? Into that window there, and blaze away; you've got the reputation of a gun-man; now let's see you prove it. Get back in the corner, miss, so I can slip past—no, lie down below the fire line!"

"But—but I will not!" she faced him, her face white, but her eyes shining. "I can shoot! See!" and she flashed a pearl-handled revolver defiantly. The Sergeant thrust her unceremoniously aside and plunged across to the opposite window, gripping his Henry rifle.

"Do as I say," he growled. "This is our fight. Get down! Now, you terriers, let them have it!"

There was a wild skurrying of mounted figures almost at the coach wheels, hair streaming, feathers waving, lean, red arms thrown up, the air vocal with shrill outcries—then the dull bark of a Henry, the boom of a Winchester, the sharp spitting of a Colt. The smoke rolled out in a cloud, pungent, concealing, nervous fingers pressing the triggers again and again. They could see reeling horses, men gripping their ponies' manes to keep erect, staring, frightened eyes, animals flung back on their haunches, rearing madly in the air. The fierce yell of exultation changed into a savage scream, bullets crashed into the thin sides of the coach; it rocked with the contact of a half-naked body flung forward by a bullet.

Winchester. How long do yer reckon we kin hold out?"

Hamlin's face became grave, his eyes also turning toward the river. The sun was already sinking low in the west, and the Indians, gathered in council out of rifle-shot, were like shadows against the glimmering water beyond.

"They'll try us again just before dark," he affirmed slowly, "but more cautiously. If that attack fails, then they'll endeavor to creep in, and take us by surprise. It's going to be a clear night, and there is small chance for even an Indian to hide in that buffalo-grass with the stars shining. They have got to come up from below, for no buck could climb down this bluff without making a noise. I don't see why, with decent luck, we can't hold out as we are until help gets here; those fellows who rode away will report at Canon Bluff and send a rider on to Dodge for help. There ought to be soldiers out here by noon tomorrow. What troops are at Dodge now?"

"Only a single company—infantry," replied Moylan gloomily. "All the rest are out scouting 'long the Solomon. Damned if I believe they'll send us a man. Those two cowards will likely report us all dead—otherwise they wouldn't have any excuse for running away—and the commander will satisfy himself by sendin' a courier to the fellows in the field."

"Well, then," commented the Sergeant, his eyes gleaming, "we've simply got to fight it out alone, I reckon, and hang on to our last shots. What do you make of those reds?"

The three men stared for some time at the distant group over their rifles, in silence.

"They ain't all Arapahoes, that's certain," said Moylan at last. "Some of 'em are Cheyennes. I've seen that chief before—it's Roman Nose."

"The big buck humped up on the roan?"

"That's the one, and he is a bad actor; saw him once over at Fort Kearney two years ago. Had a council there. Say! in surprise, 'ain't that an Ogallala Sioux war bonnet bobbin' there to the right, Sergeant?"

Hamlin studied the distant feathered head-dress indicated, shading his eyes with one hand.

"I reckon maybe it is, Moylan," he acknowledged at last gravely. "Those fellows have evidently got together; we're going to have the biggest scrap this summer the old army has had yet. Looks as though it was going to begin right here—and now. See there! The dance is on, boys; there they come; they will try it on foot this time."

He tested his rifle, resting one knee on the seat. Moylan pushed the barrel of his Winchester out through the ragged hole in the back of the coach, and the little Mexican lay flat, his eyes on the level with the window-casing. The girl alone remained motionless, crouched on the floor; her white face uplifted.

The entire field stretching to the river was clear to the view, the short, dry buffalo-grass offering no concealment. To the right of the coach, some fifty feet away, was the only depression, a shallow gully leading down from the bluff, but this slight advantage was unavailable. The sun had already dropped from view, and the gathering twilight distorted the figures, making them almost grotesque in their savagery. Yet they could be clearly distinguished, stealing silently forward, guns in hand, spreading out in a wide half-circle, obedient to the gestures of Roman Nose, who, still mounted upon his pony, was traversing the river bank, his every motion outlined against the dull gleam of water behind him. From the black depths of the coach the three men watched in almost breathless silence, gripping their weapons, fascinated, determined not to waste a shot. Gonzales, under the strain, uttered a fierce Spanish curse, but Hamlin crushed his arm between iron fingers.

"Keep still, you fool!" he muttered, never glancing around. "Let your gun talk!"

The assailants came creeping on, snakes rather than men, appearing less and less human in the increasing shadows. Twice the Sergeant lifted his Henry, sighting along the brown barrel, lowering the weapon again in doubt of the distance. He was conscious of exultation, of a swifter pulse of the heart, yet his nerves were like steel, his grip steady. Only a dim fleeting memory of the girl, half hidden in the darkness behind, gave him uneasiness—he could not turn and look into her eyes. Roman Nose was advancing now at the center of that creeping half circle, a hulking figure perched on his pony's back, yet well out of rifle range. He spread his hands apart, clasping a blanket, looking like a great bird flapping its wings, and the ground in front flamed, the red flare splitting the gray gloom. The speeding bullets crashed through the leather of the coach, splintering the wood; the Mexican rolled to the floor, uttering one inhuman cry, and lay motionless; a great volume of black smoke wavered in the still air.

"Wait! Wait until they get to their feet!" Hamlin cried eagerly. "Ah! there they come—now unlimber."

He saw only those black, indistinct figures, leaping out of the smoke, converging on the coach, their naked arms uplifted, their voices mingling in savage yells. Like lightning he worked his rifle, heart throbbing to the excitement, oblivious to all else; almost without realization he heard the deeper bellow of Moylan's Winchester, the sharp bark of a revolver at his very ear. Gonzales was all right, then! Good! He never thought of the girl, never saw her grip the pistol from the Mexican's dead hand, and crawl white-faced, over his body, to that front seat. All he really knew was that those devils were coming, leaping, crowding through the smoke wreaths; he saw them stumble, and rise again; he saw one leap into the air, and then crash face down; he saw them break, circling to right and left, crouching as they ran. Two reached the stage—one only! One pitched forward, a revolver bullet between his eyes, his head wedged in the spokes of the wheel; the other Hamlin struck with emptied rifle-barrel as his red hand gripped the door, sending him sprawling back into the dirt. It was all the work of a minute, an awful minute, intense, breathless—then silence, the smoke drifting away, the dark night hiding the skulking runners.

Terrible, indeed. "These bridge disasters are terrible," remarked the man who was reading of bridges being swept away by the river floods. "I should say so," replied his friend. "My wife lost all of her year's pin money in a game of bridge last night."

Musterole-Quick Relief No Blister!

MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and the pain is gone!

Millions of people have adopted MUSTEROLE in place of the mustard plaster.

You will find it in large hospitals. Doctors "and nurses" use MUSTEROLE and recommend it to their patients.

They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Colds of the Chest (it prevents Pneumonia).

At your druggist's in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50.

Accept no substitute. If your druggist cannot supply you, send 25c or 50c to the Musterole Company, Cleveland Ohio, and we will mail you a jar, postage prepaid.

"Musterole has helped me so much that I can hardly do without it." —Mrs. G. W. Thompson, San Antonio, Texas.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, December 27, 1872.—More trouble on the Road.—The night express trains from the north and south on the C. & N. W. road, were both delayed last night, the latter arriving at this city some eight hours behind time. The cause of its detention was an accident near Harvard by which the forward trucks of the locomotive were displaced from the rails.

A locomotive broke its parallel rods at Milton Junction yesterday, damaging the cab and stirring up the engineer, but committing no serious injury to either.

Common Council.—At the meeting of the common council last night, Ald. Metcalf presented a petition to which

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher
Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

"All men are liars," David said, disgustedly, when he had read a lengthy campaign speech. And what he said of ancient men is true today as it was then, as all conditions teach. It shouldn't dampen, though, our mirth, that liars people all the earth and throng the busy ways; for liars make this life worth while and give the human face a smile, and brighten all our days. When I am sick the liars tell how sad they are that I'm not well, how mournful are their hearts; they hand me sympathy L I A R S so sweet that warmth comes to my rigid feet, and all my pain departs. And when I write a misfit poem the liars seek my humble home to tell me it was fine; they thus encourage me to strive, to keep the jaded muse alive, when she's in a decline. The liars take the cheerful view as this old world they amble through, they are the optimists; they rob this life of half its knots, and color up the faded spots, and straighten out the twists. The liar says the clouds will break and that the good old sun will make this planet once more glad; the truthful man looks up and scowls; "We'll have a month of this," he growls, and makes our bosoms sad. Some liars are gentle, kindly things; some truths are barbed with painful stings, keen as a serpent's tooth; I have no doubt that in the skies the angels like some kinds of liars far better than the truth.

Caught in the Act.
"Pipkin says he remembers distinctly the first time his father ever held a smoker."
"How does he happen to remember that?"
"Pipkin was the smoker."

Lack of Realism.
"Did you see where some actress says that audiences do not like to see husband and wife acting as lovers on the stage."
"Of course not. It's not natural."

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

STRIKE TWO!

The bases were full (true, winter comes apace, but a live editor is always afraid to turn down a good baseball story) and it was up to "Spottsy" Woods, as able a pitcher as ever fanned out six times in one game, to save the day for the home team. Things looked black, but "Spottsy" had pulled them out of many a tighter hole ere this.

The men on the bases balanced on taut legs as the wizard southpaw rolled the ball lovingly in his palms and prepared to strike out the third man in succession. With the speed of lightning the ball shot over the plate. "Strike one!" bawled the umpire.

It might truthfully be said that the batters went wild were it not for the fact that they were wild already. With the speed of more lightning, the ball shot over the plate again.

"Strike two!" bawled the umpire. A splash, thunder, hail! pandemonium reigned, a thunder, hail and reign together were something here!

Only one more cast of that mighty arm was needed! But at that moment there came a voice, cold, clear and shrill:

"Johnny Woods, you come home this minute and run them errands!"

The bleachers stood up in a frenzy of despair for his ma had him by the ear! In vain they pleaded with her to let him pitch the deciding ball! And as many another in the history of the diamond, thus was the game lost through interference.

The Practical Girl.
He—You are the prettiest girl I ever saw.
She—That sounds all right, but I don't know how much the compliment is worth until you tell me how many pretty girls you have seen.
